

E-learning option

E-learning option enables students to study by watching class videos uploaded to a web system named WebClass after each onsite class. The videos are taken from the fixed point by a video camera established in the class room, so that there may be some unclear points in the videos if faculty explained using white board outside the frame. Further, microphone for students are limited, thus questions from students may not be captured in the video. Therefore, it should be noted that students have to take more time than the onsite class, and we strongly recommend to attend the class, say, taking a payed leave.

<Learning method>

Students must complete the following tasks to acquire credit of a subject.

- Taking classes by watching videos
- Submitting assignments
- Answering the class evaluation questionnaire

Addition to the above, students are required to attend the onsite “Summer session class” which is designed to complement the E-learning option, focusing mainly on Biostatistics I and Epidemiology I.
