

Lecture No	031045
Subject title	Public Health Practice II	Subject ID	GP—b3301—T
Instructors
Semester	YearLong 2025	Level	1st – 2nd year	Units	6
Course by the instructor with practical experiences
Instructor(s): The academic advisor
Office hours: To be specified by the academic advisor
Lecture place
To be specified by the academic advisor
Course Purpose and Outline
Course Purpose: This course focuses on developing practical skills to carry out research related to public health and present the results.
Outline: All students are required to complete a research practicum either in Japan or an international public health setting. This will include research design, data collection and analysis, and writing a master's thesis.
Course Objective(s)
By the end of this course, students will be able to:
a) Negotiate with field counterparts and prepare original data collection.
b) Collect original data.
c) Apply analytical techniques to obtained data.
d) Interpret the results of analyses.
e) Report the conducted research in academic presentations and papers.
Lecture Style
This course involve substantial interaction with and instruction by academic advisor and are set up on an ad hoc basis. Arrangement must be made with the academic advisor.
Course Outline
To be specified by the academic advisor
Grading System
Comprehensive grading based on the thesis paper and other achievements
Prerequisite Reading
To be specified by the academic advisor
Module Unit Judgment
6 units
Reference Materials
To be specified by the academic advisor
Important Course Requirements
To be specified during orientation
Note(s) to Students
This course is required for all students. Please read the article “Application for degree” in this guide book for further information on the policies and regulations of the Graduate School.					